A few months back, a girl from my alma mater, UGA, emailed me to ask more about the school. One of my former professors had told her about my ministry and encouraged her to read my blog that one of her professors had told her about. She is studying speech pathology as an undergrad currently and wanted to see what speech therapy looked like in a missions setting. Eva is currently here working with me, getting to know the kids and working on a few projects. One of these is to perform hearing screenings on all the children in the entire school. Quite a large feat!! It took us 6 days, and we even tested all of the teachers as well. Although it is required in all public schools in the States, it is a luxury to have this done here in Guatemala. We were able to identify a few more students who need to go for further medical and audiological testing. It will help the teachers as well to know who in their classrooms has a hearing impairment.

So, thank you Eva for sacrificing your summer to come help us!

Support Group News: Mother's Day

Mother's Day in Guatemala is always May 10. It is a very important holiday in Guatemala. Sandra and I decided to do a special Mother's Day celebration to honor the mothers in our support group and make them feel special. We ordered Pollo Campero (think Kentucky Fried Chicken), a favorite of all Guatemalans. We played games, talked about the qualities of a virtuous woman from Proverbs 31, and ate together. I think they really felt honored and special to be treated to such an event. Thank you to the ladies at Fairlane church of Christ for allowing us to splurge on these ladies and make them feel loved and honored for what they do.
